

I am writing in response to the Consumer Bankers Association's attempt to weaken the State of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Act. This Act was passed with the overwhelming support of the citizens of this state. We adamantly oppose any attempts to reduce its effectiveness. There are plenty of ways for banks to solicit my business without ringing my phone off the hook.

The citizens of this state have made it clear they do not want to be bothered by these type of calls. It would be a gross violation of our rights (the Constitution provides rights to men, not corporations) and of the sovereignty of our state to use the FCC's authority to undermine this act.

Thank you.
